Princeton Boy Killed In Naval Blimp Collision

Seaman Harold W. Percy's Body Recovered, Will Be Sent Home For Burial

A message, received Saturday afternoon at 5 o'clock from the Navy Department, informed Mr. Percy's family that their son, Seaman Harold Woodson Percy, 23, was killed in a collision of two blimps off the New Jersey coast at 10 o'clock that morning.

Two officers and four enlistment men were known to have perished in the collision. Another blimp, piloted by Chandler Dilley, Louisville, was killed. The other blimp crashed into its base without incident. The six killed were the blimp which crashed into the sea.

Percy, a second class seaman, was transferred to the Naval Training School at Memphis, Tenn., where he was due to get a leave and planned to come home to see his parents.

Percy was employed at the Federated Stores and was a member of the Methodist church. His parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward, who is in the U. S. Navy, somewhere in the Pacific.

Parents requested the body be sent home for burial and not be buried in a Naval or Naval cemetery. A message is being sent to the Navy Department, which will be accompanied by a Naval officer.

Two Auto Thefts Charged To Pair Of Runaway Boys

Wreck Near Fredonia Brings Capture; Webster County Sheriff Takes Culprits Home

Two run-away Providence boys, Bobby Belt, 11, last seen at home Monday morning, Oct. 11, and Kenneth Dorris, 12, missing since early Friday, Oct. 15, were under guard of State Highway Patrolmen, Ross Lockhart and Delmar Short, from 3:30 Saturday morning until noon after having stolen two automobiles, abandoning one and wrecking the other, according to a confession made to officers by the boys. They were trying to steal a third car when stopped at Fredonia by John Henry Fralicks, fifth district constable.

The boys hitchhiked from Providence to Wheatcroft Friday morning where they took the car of Mrs. S. W. Traylor. Belt did the driving, Dorris said. This car was abandoned a mile west of Kuttawa after a flat tire and an empty gas tank made it useless, the boy said.

Walking to Kuttawa, the confession continued, the boys searched for a car with ignition key and also hoped to find one with radio and heater, compromising on one with heater only, they took the car of Ira Bennett and drove toward Fredonia. Failing to make a curve near the railroad a short distance from Fredonia, the car left the road and hurtled through the air 45 feet, Dorris estimated. Officers estimated the car damaged is about $100. Neither boy was hurt. They continued to Fredonia, where Constable Fralicks caught them, called Short and Lockhart who had been notified the two cars were missing. Dorris told officers where to find the cars.

Patrolmen Short and Lockhart, commenting on greatly increased juvenile delinquency, said Belt was a "tough customer." When Short asked him his name, he said, "Try and find out, Copper." Sheriff Ben Herrington, of Webster county, came for the boys Saturday and said they will be placed in the custody of parents until Webster circuit court convenes, since both are juveniles.

Since the quota system has been suspended, it is no longer necessary to have the dealer-permit order in effect, Mr. George was informed.

An intensive scrap metal campaign will be conducted in Princeton and throughout Caldwell county Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, Oct. 25, 26 and 27, Thos. McConnell, recently named scrap salvage chairman, announced Monday.

Pupils of the county schools will collect war vital scrap metal Monday and Tuesday, when their schools will be closed for issuance of Ration Book No. 4, and will take their collections to their respective schools, where it will be collected by State Highway trucks, it was announced. Each school will benefit by sale of the scrap in proportion to the amount collected by its pupils, Mr. McConnell said.

In Princeton, those having metal too heavy for school pupils to handle are requested to telephone Chairman McConnell, at the Caldwell County Times, and it will be called for. City trucks will collect scrap piled at the street edge by pupils who will collect it Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons, and proceeds will go to their schools.

Fence wire, bed-springs, galvanized iron, roofing and tin are not wanted in this collection, Mr. McConnell said, nor will rubber, paper or other salvage be taken at this time. Only scrap suitable for steel mills, to make munitions and implements of war, is wanted now. This need is urgent, the chairman said.

Mrs. Carroll said it was expected that fifty to sixty percent of the ballots cast November 2 will be women's votes.

"This is the only time you will be called upon to give money for any war or community fund this year," Chairman Harralson said. "The Community Chest will have no campaign and all relief organizations will share in proceeds of the War Fund. The national slogan of the War Fund Campaign is 'Show You Care,' so our own fighting forces and those of our Allies will know the home front is backing them in every possible manner."

Women's organizations will be in charge of downtown War Fund headquarters in the office of the Kentucky Utilities Company one day each from November 1 through November 8.

Soliciting by teams of USO women workers will begin in the residential districts of Princeton Monday, Nov. 1, it was decided, and in the business district by teams from the membership of the Princeton Retail Merchants Association Tuesday. Nearing Critical Crossroads Again

As portents indicate victory over Nazi Germany grows ever nearer for the steadily mounting might of the United Nations, the civilized world seems destined again to face soon that critical crossroads at which we made a wrong turning in 1920 . . . and brought upon us this second terrible World War.

Even today as our Secretary of State is in Moscow seeking better understanding with our great ally Russia, the Soviet people and those of the British Empire, engaged with us in trying once more to achieve the ultimate dream of democratic nations, an enduring peace, are gravely concerned, hesitant concerning how far they logically can go toward new and helpful commitments . . . because, as in 1918, they dare not believe anything Mr. Hull agrees to will be binding upon the man who may take his place in a new administration in the United States.

They fear, do our Allies, and properly, that the great humanitarian in the White House, whose leadership for peace is so potent today, will have done his work and retired to well earned rest by the war's end . . . and that his Atlantic Charter, along with every other commitment he may have made for world understanding, good will and the brotherhood of man, may be discarded as was Woodrow Wilson's ill-fated League of Nations, collapse of which brought the carnage of today after a few brief years.

Joseph Stalin and Molotov, Winston Churchill and Eden and all the valiant millions they represent are more at loss today how to proceed toward a lasting peace . . . because of uncertainty which exists in their minds regarding our future course, than about any phase of the fighting.

The war is undoubtedly won in that victory for Germany is now an impossibility. Nazi collapse is delayed merely until such time as the mass of public opinion in the Reich forces the Junkers to sue upon the best obtainable terms. But what of the peace to come after this most costly holocaust?

Again the specter of Republican isolationism stalks the nation and the many liberals of every political belief are crying aloud for support of the Fullbright resolution and for giving every possible assurance to our Allies that this time, the United States will do her full share to safeguard the world against fresh aggression, the forces of reactionism are at large in Kentucky cloaking behind a mild-mannered candidate for Governor their hatred of the principles advanced by Wilson and forwarded so nobly by Franklin D. Roosevelt and Cordell Hull.

Senator Alben W. Barkley, speaking at Madisonville recently, said the young men and women who are fighting the war for us have a right to demand that we on the home front protect the way of life for which they give all. He called attention to the fact that in no other country in the world has every man and woman so full and free a voice in selecting leadership and in shaping policies of government and said that if we at home shirk our solemn duty to protect Democracy by failing to vote, we do an act of treachery.

The language is not too strong in this hour when the destinies of all persons living and of millions yet unborn hang in the balance. The Democratic party in Kentucky is now, as it was in 1919, pledged to the principle which will give maximum opportunity to the world's democracies to plan for a peaceful world, but the Republican leadership of Kentucky—Robinson, Sampson and Swope, and their hand-picked candidate, Judge Willis, are as damnable reactionaries, as completely isolationist as when the same men joined Henry Cabot Lodge, Hiram Johnson, William A. Borah and the other Republicans who wrecked the League of Nations and gave Woodrow Wilson his death blow.

Soon we shall come to this critical crossroads again. Will you, through careless neglect, be a party to giving Kentucky over to the isolationist world-wrecking crew? Will you be one to desert your Commander-in-Chief in the most crucial stage of his fight for freedom?

By your vote Tuesday, Nov. 2, you can help direct the peace makers to the right turning when the war shall have been won . . . and thus aid in preventing another world war for children of the present fighters to wage.

Famous Commentator Always Buys Paper

A noted radio commentator said the other night he always buys and reads rather carefully, as soon as he reaches a city or town, a copy of its newspaper . . . because the newspaper reflects the spirit of the community accurately.

This is another way of saying what we have said in these columns several times heretofore: That a community is judged by the kind of newspaper it supports.

When reading your home newspaper, give a thought now and then to how it represents Princeton and Caldwell county when it goes, as it does, traveling to all parts of the Nation and to some foreign lands.

And remember, please, while you are thinking about this: your newspaper can hope to put its best foot forward, to appear well, be properly edited, have good composition, make-up and reader interest . . . if its revenues are sufficient to warrant the sort of outlay for trained and efficient help necessary in the production of a first class publication.

Few Drafted Papas To See Action

By Jack Stinnett
Associated Press Features

Washington — The draft of pre-Pearl Harbor fathers is under way. We didn't think it would happen and said so.

But in spite of the fact that Congressional efforts to put over a total ban or at least a deferment of the father draft has failed, both the Army and Selective Service still admit that only one in ten to 13 actually will be inducted.

Army, Selective Service and Navy officials knocked the postponement legislation into a cocked hat; but in all three circles, there are important officials who are willing to say, off the record, that pre-Pearl Harbor fathers have only a slight chance of ever serving in the armed forces and probably only a minute chance in the combat areas.

Broadly, the reasons for deferment of fathers will follow this outline, in the order named:

(1) Physical, which is the number one reason for deferment of selectees in any bracket and is certain to show a greater ratio for fathers who will be in the higher age groups.

(2) Occupational grounds. Pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, as a class, were far more solidly established in necessary and indispensable jobs than the youngsters and drifters who came into the war production picture later.

(3) Hardship cases. For almost the first time, the local boards will be dealing with a group which really is full of hardship cases—fathers supporting motherless families, families with invalid wives, etc.

The fourth reason is that pre-Pearl Harbor fathers, in those areas where the manpower barrel hasn't been scraped to the bottom, are still far down the list. The order of induction is (and these orders have gone to the local boards): unmarried men without dependents; unmarried men with dependents; married men without children (including marriages long before Pearl Harbor); post-Pearl Harbor fathers; and finally pre-Pearl Harbor fathers.

I have been asked often if there is any way for a pre-Pearl Harbor father to determine when, if at all, he will be called. There is no positive answer but fathers can determine in advance if they are likely to be called immediately, later or never.

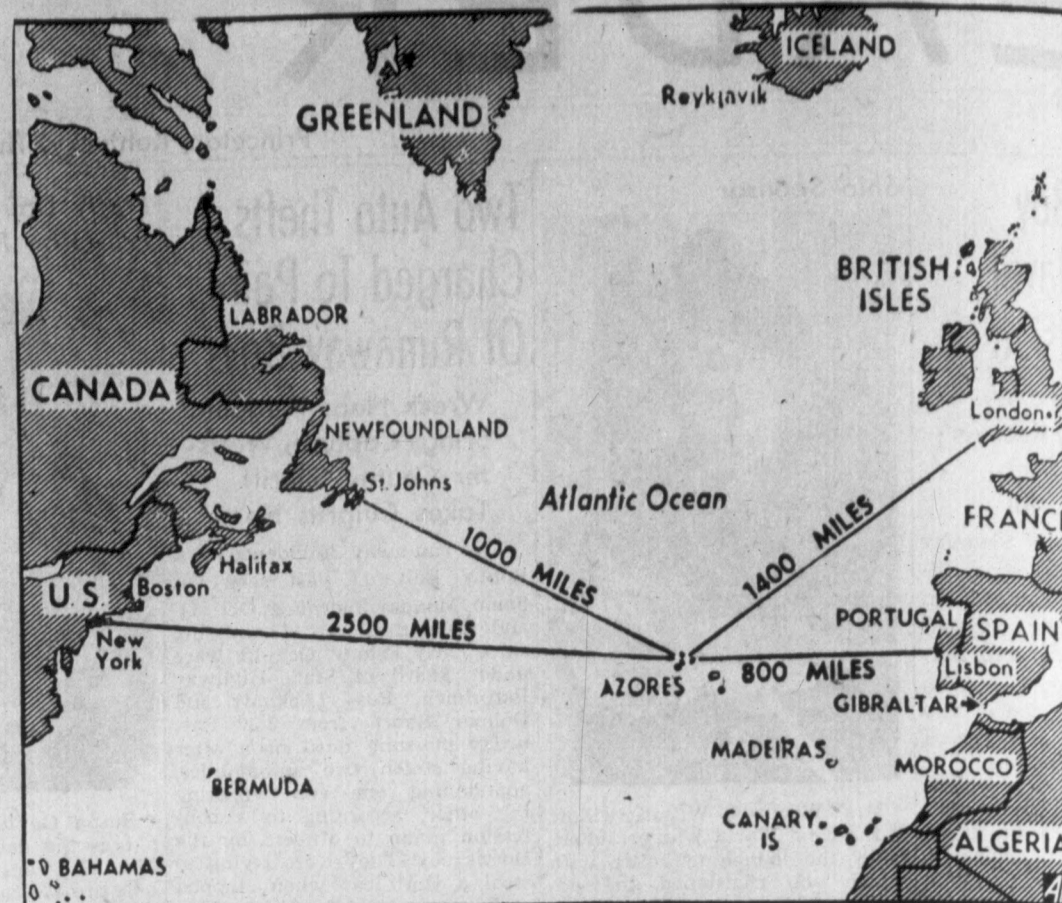

Your local board should be able to show at a glance your order number. If your number is far down the list, you may never even be called for induction.

Secondly, you can get preliminary (but not positive) checks on your physical condition.

In the third place, you can discuss with your employer whether yours is a critical occupation as listed by the War Manpower Commission.

If you clear all these deferment huddles and your number is up—that is up high on the local board call list—you had better start putting your affairs in order.

Pennyrite Postscripts By G. M. P.

"Better than any pre-Christmas trade in the history of our store" is the way two Princeton merchants describe last Saturday's big buying spree here. One Main street concern, short a star clerk, managed to ring up a new gross sales record. Everywhere in the business district, sales were big and brisk.

First real autumn weather brought on purchases of heavy wearables, blankets, underwear, etc. . . . And Monday's trade, altho not as rushing as Saturday's, indicated there's plenty of money in sight hereabouts.

Citizens are paying taxes well at the sheriff's office and City Hall these days, after warning ads having been inserted in the press . . . Uncle Sam is advising his nephews to pay all debts and buy War Bonds with surplus cash . . . and from appearances here, a good many are following this good tip.

Land values, which got out of hand during and immediately following the last World War, are soaring hereabouts again. Sad lesson learned so thoroughly in 1919-20-21, should not be forgotten now for, almost certainly, there will be another "recession" after this war, when over-priced land will break some unwary buyers . . . especially folks who rush into the farming business without thorough understanding of its numerous pitfalls.

Political experts in Central Kentucky are guessing about who will succeed the late Ed Creal, Hodgenville congressman who died last week. A special primary may be necessary, after the general election of November 2, in order for men and women absent in war service to have a chance to vote. This is provided for by a 1942 federal law.

—Odd But Science—
Star-Gazing From A Shelf

By H. W. Blakeslee
Associated Press Features
New York—Arthur Rosenberg, advertising executive, and member of the Amateur Astronomers Association, has a window-shelf astronomical observatory in his apartment in New York City.

Outside of a small, chest-high window, says Sky & Telescope, Rosenberg has fastened a two-foot-square shelf. On this shelf, when he wants to observe, he places a plate-glass mirror. The glass is free of distortion.

This glass mirrors the heavens. Rosenberg looks at the glass with anything from a three-power opera glass to a short focus telescope. An advantage is that he looks down, instead of craning his neck, and out of a window at that.

He is able to study clusters of stars, constellations, double stars and other sky exhibits, despite the poor seeing of a city's atmosphere and lights. The dim-out is a great help to the window shelf observing.

The window shelf is a great convenience on cold winter nights and also on clear, windy nights when a small telescope, out doors, suffers from vibration.

If the district Democratic committee, which is composed of chairmen of each of the 19 counties, names the new congressman, J. Dan Talbott, long prominent as a Fourth district leader, would seem to have the best chance . . . since he had much to do with naming the present county chairmen.

When a guy can maintain good humor with a carbuncle on his neck it is proof positive he is a rare fellow . . . and that's what Dick Gregory has accomplished the last two weeks and more.

If you would hear one of the most attractive and appealing speakers to take the public rostrum in Kentucky within recent years, tune in on Mayor Wilson Wyatt, of Louisville, or attend his speaking if you're handy to the place.

This somewhat worn-at-the-seams reporter, who has been around all the top flight Kentucky orators for quite some time now, likes the energetic, forceful, right-to-the-point style of Louisville's young mayor very much indeed. He is breezy, delightful, intelligent, entertaining. If he wants to remain in politics, here's one who will take a ticket on his going right far.

The stray kitten at our house, which David said was "just on a vacation", departed after two days . . . to the considerable satisfaction to all adults who live there.

Jackie, 9, is actuated by as completely altruistic impulses as anybody I ever saw. Currently he spends his time out of school helping Bubs, the Taylor boys and other friends gather and hull walnuts, never bringing any home for himself. His hands are the despair of Granny and Miss Liza.

A fine example of tact, says a contemporary, is to make your guests feel at home when you wish they were.

"Mother, where's Daddy tonight, at the lodge?", asked a bright young hopeful. "No, dear. Your father has gone down to mop the office." And we know which office!

Business Up In The Air

By Spoon River Sam

You can get an idea how sharp the competition is going to be in the air after the war if you notice all the bus companies, railroads and airlines already bidding for helicopter routes.

To me that looks like a field of opportunity. Right now, I'm trying to contact them helicopter outfits to sell 'em air rights over my place. I don't want to live in a postwar world where helicopters are in a continual traffic snarl over my roof.

All in all, I'm pretty optimistic. I figure I'll come out a heap better on this helicopter deal than on my last enterprise. That was when the WPB changed their minds about cutting bread, and I was left with five dozen unsold bread slicers on my hands.

Washington In Wartime—
Civilian Gripes Get An AiringBy Jack Stinnett

Washington—One of the frequent unhappiest, often scrappiest, divisions of the War Production Board is the Office of Civilian Requirements, headed by Arthur D. Whiteside.

His primary objective is to see that the war effort isn't hampered by bottlenecks in civilian necessities. There is no intention on the part of government to fix things up so that civilian in wartime can rock in the lap of luxury, but it does recognize that there is a civilian supply minimum below which health, morale and efficiency might break down and cause home-front setbacks just as vital as the loss of important battles on the fighting front.

That's why OCR is going direct to the source within the next few weeks with one of the most extensive "public opinion polls" that the government has yet conducted. It's going to be a cross-section sampling of nation's housewives to find out what war economy has done to home life and home management; to all the civilian gripes as well as sacrifices which are being made cheerfully and might even be extended and to check upon those things, national and sectional, which are causing the greatest civilian grief.

I have never been a poll addict, have always felt that a poll is more like a lie-detector. The answer, there, all right, but it takes a scientific genius to interpret it correctly. However, I have seen the 20-odd questionnaire which OCR plans to circulate under the direction of University of Denver's National Opinion Research Center and I have hunch that the government is going to learn a lot from this one.

Present plans call for presenting to some 10,000 housewives. OCR planning to base 1944 civilian requirements on this poll, which makes about the most important quiz program the government has launched since World War II started.

The questionnaire will cover everything from diaper pins to automobiles and in the kitchen division will range from pots and pans to garbage disposal. Sectional and national short price ceiling punctures, black market and surpluses will be ferreted out. Investigators are being schooled in test surveys. OCR will want to know if your bus or trolley service is adequate; if you can get a doctor when you need one; how long it takes to get a pair of shoes half-price; if your radio is working and if not, not; and if you are a farmer's how are you doing on everything from skinning knives to tractors.

THE BAYOUS OF LOUISIANA

by Harnett T. Kane

It is possible, now, to escape war without losing too much face. By reading Harnett Kane's "The Bayous of Louisiana," one may broaden the well-known "culture" and have a rare time at once. That's what to expect from a book. This is Mr. Kane's second book. It was about a single Louisiana exotic and his gang—very Long and the little king—The new one is about a whole race of exotics. These are bayou dwellers, mostly Acadians, and yet altogether American. Along the often dark water-lanes live these Canadian exiles; it still is possible to go a journey, without passing a common language. Yet hundreds of the inhabitants are Sons of the Revolution.

You cross the Mississippi at New Orleans, your little steamship passes right through locks on the Mississippi level, and within a few minutes you are in bayou country where water snakes to navigation, and passages hacked through swamps the porogues of the people called "roads." The bayous of every size, some mere ditches, some wide channels, their banks may be high, and dry.

It is a Catholic country, where Archbishop blesses the camp fleet, sacred relics are carried in procession, and on All Saints night candles are lighted to shine over the dark graves, and under the moss-hung branches, or several of them, and since the Acadians have been long out of France,

News From The Past

News representing lives, hopes, dreams and ambitions of those who made up the populace of Princeton and Caldwell county almost 40 years ago and recorded nowhere but in the yellowed files of Twice-A-Week Leader of those years will be published as a regular feature. The articles are reproduced just as the Princeton reporters, shortly after the turn of the century, wrote them.

Princeton, April 7, 1908—Miss Nettie Gresham, one of Caldwell county's most popular young ladies, is the new Deputy County Court Clerk during the absence of Miss Sarina Tucker, who happened to serious accident some weeks ago. Miss Gresham will no doubt make an efficient deputy.

Princeton, April 7, 1908—Rev. Vaughn and Messrs. Andy Woodall, Will Woodall and Andy Russell, Crittenden county, are visiting the family of E. N. Crayne and attending the Bible Ministers Institute at the Baptist church.

Princeton, April 10, 1908—David L. Beaver, demonstrator for the Whitney Tailoring Co., spent two days in the city this week. His motto is: "Swell Duds Built to Order and The Lord Helps Us All."

Princeton, April 10, 1908—At the regular meeting of Red Men Wednesday night, the first and second degrees were conferred on some of the idioms are those current in the mother country in the 18th century. In the back country cowboys ride in their herds in French, and the buggy is still the chief means of transportation. Wedding feasts are mostly cakes and wine, and the families of the groom and the bride bake for days in order not to be outdone, one by the other. Egrets, alligators, swamps, oil derricks, shrimp luggers, bilingual juries—all sorts of things abound. Mr. Kane makes them fabulously interesting.

and a great deal of business transacted. The lodge is now growing very rapidly and a brass band will soon be organized. We are delighted to say it will be a sticker, just the thing Princeton needs to enliven things up on all occasions.

Princeton, April 14, 1908—Wanted—Ten Thousand pounds of Country Bason. Best price paid in cash or merchandise. Smith Bros.

Princeton, April 14, 1908—W. H. Hilliard, Crider, was in the city yesterday. He has just recovered from a long illness of pneumonia and bronchitis and yesterday was the first time he has been to town since the election last November.

Princeton, April 17, 1908—Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Hodge are rejoicing over the arrival of a fine girl baby at their home yesterday morning.

Princeton, April 21, 1908—Mr. Mills Wood has just nicely improved his Washington street property, known as the Baker place, in a most noticeable manner. A nice long porch has been added, the house newly painted, inside and out, besides other improvements necessary to make it a model home. He is still renting it out, however, but just how long, we are not prepared to say.

Princeton, April 21, 1908—C. B. Wood, one of our cleverest young men, has accepted a position with Jewell and Luther Dawson, three modest, blushing bachelors of the arts of fishing, and historic recounters of really fine fish stories, went to Livingston Creek last Saturday and brought back with them a string of fish five feet long—a sure enough demonstrated fact—and some of the fish were more than a foot in length.

Princeton, April 28, 1908—Glover Dollar assisted Mr. L. G. Cox in the First National Bank during the absence of the President and Cashier. Mr. Dollar is one of Princeton's clever and rising young men. He is now bookkeeper for the J. A. Stegar tobacco prize house.

Post-War Marriage

By Grace Martin (Associated Press Features)

If you are affianced or newly wed to a man in service, you are dreaming of course of life after the war with him.

It's largely up to you to make Up to you more than to him because you are the one in touch with the realities of civilian life and the one who can study and work now without let or hindrance from higher authority. On the common sense, frugality and foresight that you use now and later depends much of the success of your marriage.

One secret of making dreams come true is not to dream too extravagantly. Right now you are dreaming of a perfect husband snatched from you by war. Could anything be wrong with such a one? There certainly could—and will be.

He won't be the same man you sent away. Perhaps he will be better perhaps worse. Certainly he will be changed. Quite likely he will be restless. See to it that you have no dreams so set that he will feel tied down by your plans. Perhaps he will be rough where he was gentle, or introspective where he was open-minded. Whatever the change, be not startled or afraid, but be ready to go half way and more toward the adjustments that inevitably must be made.

Instead of watching and waiting for the same chap you sent off to the wars, plan now on the realities you yourself must face.

One thing you can count on—that he still loves you. In the boredom of the barracks and the grime and weariness and danger of the campaign he has been dreaming about you.

What pedestals he has placed you on, what virtues he has attributed to you of amiability and daintiness, of efficiency and good cookery, you may never know—unless you actually approximate them.

The thing to do, then, is to improve on the virtues you have and acquire others that you should have.

Can't cook? Is there any good reason you should not learn? Such a book as "The Joy of Cooking," by Irma Rombauer, will give you the ABC's of cooking, clearly explained.

Letting yourself go because he won't know anyway? That is strictly a matter for your own morale department. You will not be able in time of need to chuck sloppy habits of personal care over night. Better watch yourself on this.

Don't know how to run a house? Your mother or mother-in-law will let you take over for awhile if that is practicable, and you can learn much from such a text as "The Book of House Economics," by Mary M. Leaming.

Baffled by the thought of marriage itself? A talk with a sensible older married woman or study of such a book as "Marriage for Moderns," by Dr. Henry A. Bowman, should prove valuable.

In the making of a happy postwar marriage, it's only fair to give heaven as much help as possible.

Size of the average family in North Carolina is 4.9 persons, the highest average in the United States.

Crude-Oil Supply Won't Fail, Says Petroleum Expert

Will the earth's petroleum supply stand the enormous drain of global warfare? Will it meet the needs of postwar years—which will add many new items to the list of 2,000 products now being made from crude oil?

The answer is Yes, says Gustav Egloff, president of the American Institute of Chemists and research director of the Universal Oil Products Co., writing in a recent issue of the Rotarian magazine.

Oil is probably being produced by Nature faster than it is being consumed by man, Dr. Egloff maintains. There are doubtless millions of acres of oil-producing territory in the western hemisphere not yet discovered or developed, and many other parts of the earth should prove to be not less rich.

But in addition to its 375,000 producing wells, the United States has billions of barrels available from other crude oil sources, he contends. Investigations have brought to light facts regarding earth processes which convince us that oil is constantly being formed, Dr. Egloff asserts, citing the diatoms found in closed basins of the North American Continental Shelf, particularly along the west coast of California. Diatoms (brown, one-cell plants, growing in jellylike masses in both fresh and salt water) are constantly depositing in the deeper waters of the Pacific Coast, and their organic content is constantly increasing.

Dr. Egloff estimates that the diatoms in the Monterey shale of the Santa Maria, California, oil fields would alone produce two billion barrels of oil by an ether-process extraction—and these represent only one limited area where diatoms are plentiful.

From the foregoing we may conclude that Nature is producing oil at a faster rate than gas pressure or pump strokes can bring it to the earth's surface, writes Dr. Egloff, so we may take heart for the future.

How To Relieve Bronchitis

Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. Army Captain Designed First Service Flag

Who first thought of the blue-starred (or gold-starred), red-bordered rectangle of cloth that tells its proud story in millions of American windows today? The service flag was originated back in 1917 by R. L. Queisser, then a captain in the Fifth Regiment, Ohio Infantry. A Cleveland resident, he designed the emblem for use by families having members in armed forces. Captain Queisser's idea caught the popular fancy at once, finding official sanction as the city of Cleveland and many other municipalities declared in favor of its use, while the state of Ohio shortly followed suit. A one-time member of Cleveland's Rotary club, the originator of the service flag died several years ago.

Has Faint Need For Red Stamps

When her husband decided he wanted sardines, Mrs. S. J. Moore of Rockcastle county used the first and only red stamp to be removed from ration book No. 2. She has used no blue stamps. Last spring Mrs. Moore canned tenderloin, ribs and backbone, and smoked hams and fried sausage to provide a variety of pork meat. Then she raised 150 chickens. Two cows provide milk, butter and cheese. From fruit and vegetables grown on the place, Mrs. Moore put up about 200 cans. Rationing doesn't worry Mr. and Mrs. Moore.

Anchorage, Alaska (AP) — Entertainment in the northland is a paying business for Uncle Sam. Taxes on general admissions and club dues in Alaska jumped from $60,930 for the 1942 fiscal year to $172,454 for the year just concluded, Clark Squire, collector of Internal Revenue for Washington State and Alaska, said.

Other major tax increases included: liquor, $116,996 to $141,455 and coin devices, $4,355 to $12,989.

Homemakers' Clubs Launch Plans To Meet War Needs

Programs planned to help meet the wartime needs of women on farms were launched by Homemakers' Clubs throughout Kentucky the past month. Special committees which kept in mind the needs and interests of women in this critical time arranged the year's activities of the farm women.

Unusual interest is indicated in home sewing, reconditioning of sewing machines and ways to bring the clothing on hand up-to-date, all of which is in line with the national program of purchasing as little as possible and making what is on hand last.

Confronted with the problem of no help, other groups of farm women are interested in ways of conserving time and energy through simplified house-keeping, better use of equipment, elimination of unnecessary duties and cooperation of every family member.

Not only are women interested in reducing expenditures by making over clothing, but also home furnishings. Rugs made at home, and furniture restored to usefulness and beauty, claim the attention of many homemakers' clubs.

As always, there is interest in better nutrition, that high standards of health and efficiency for the family be maintained. Of special interest is better use of food on hand, careful purchasing in regard to rationing, and ways of substituting where shortages occur.

41-A Burley Leaf Pleases Growers

Growers of 30,000 to 35,000 acres of Kentucky 41-A burley tobacco this season are almost all pleased with results, says Russell Hunt, extension tobacco specialist for the Kentucky College of Agriculture and Home Economics. It stood the drought well, grew uniformly, ripened into a golden yellow color, and gives indication of curing up into a high quality of smoker tobacco. Hunt believes it will be one of the high-yielding varieties this year. It is resistant to black root-rot.

Puts Pig Profits In Grenade Terms

It cost Reed Antle of Russell county 7½ cents a pound to raise a litter of 11 pigs from birth to a weight of 2,575 pounds when 168 days old. He bought all feed. His profit, County Agent R. V. Trosper figured out, would have bought 117 hand grenades and 16 rifle bullets, with 8 cents left over.

It's HIGH TIME to Change in Kentucky!

For 12 years now, state administration has been in the hands of a gang!

In spite of changes in outward leadership, the gang has remained unchanged. Its policy, from first to last, has been to keep itself in power.

And so we have seen the waste of money and the abuse of trust. We have seen sleepers on the payroll and leeches on the public purse. We have heard of deals and bargains and conspiracies against the general interest. We have read of political assessments against state employees and illegal contributions to campaign funds. We have seen the public service degraded and standards of honest cast aside. We have borne a heavier and heavier burden of taxation.

By these means, the machine has fattened and grown strong, until now we can free ourselves from it only by united and resolute action.

YOU can help save Kentucky

The Republican party, by nominating nine independent and able citizens pledged to the elimination of political gangsterism, offers the opportunity for freedom and good government. By supporting them, we strike a blow for liberty and take sides against dishonor.

Why VICKS Is So Good For Relieving Miseries of Childrens Colds

More than two generations ago—in grandmother's day—mothers first discovered Vicks VapoRub. Today it is the most widely used home-remedy for relieving miseries of children's colds. And here is the reason...

The moment you rub VapoRub on the throat, chest and back at bedtime it starts to work two ways at once—and keeps on working for hours—to ease coughing spasms, help clear congestion in cold-clogged upper breathing passages, relieve muscular soreness or tightness. It promotes restful sleep. Often most of the misery of the cold is gone by morning! That's why VapoRub is so good to use when colds strike. Try it!

Swap Shop' Wartime Furniture Plan

A "swap shop" where the public can turn in all sorts of used articles, and a novel "Dutch bid" system that rewards shrewd appraisal of values with substantial cash savings are two of the many methods being used today by retail furniture men to meet the challenge wartime restrictions have imposed on their field, according to L. M. Richards, past president of the National Retail Furniture association.

The "swap shop" is the idea of an ingenious Indiana merchant. He accepts an almost limitless variety of household articles: washing machines, electrical appliances, baby furniture, lamps, refrigerators, cooking utensils, garden tools, luggage, etc. Payment is made in war stamps and bonds, or in "budget checks." The store takes a 10 percent fee for serving as go-between for the swappers, and incidentally attracts hundreds of new customers, many of whom will no doubt stick.

The swastika, generally interpreted as a sun symbol, is one of the most ancient ornamental forms, used by early peoples in both hemispheres.

Selassie moved into the $12,000 residence in 1936 and lived in it most of the time until 1940, when he returned to his native land in the wake of British armies and completed the restoration of his empire.

The place will be converted to philanthropic purposes as soon as the last members of the royal family leave England. The Emperor's daughter, the widowed Princess Tenage Work, plans to go home shortly, as will Haile Selassie's third son, Sahle, who has been studying at Bristol University.

Burley Growers To Vote Oct. 23 On Marketing Quotas

Local Farmers Will Conduct Referendum; Vote At City Hall Saturday, 9 to 5

Burley tobacco growers are to vote October 23 on extending marketing quotas beyond this selling season, when quotas voted three years ago expire.

Caldwell county farmers will conduct the referendum vote in all communities in which burley tobacco is grown. All owners, tenants or share-croppers who share in the 1943 burley crop are eligible to vote. The balloting here will be done at City Hall Saturday, from 9 to 5 o'clock.

A two-thirds majority of eligible votes cast will be necessary to have quotas continue after this season. Growers of flue-cured tobacco recently voted 7 to 1 in favor of quotas for 3 years.

At the same time the marketing quota referendum was announced it was made known that Burley tobacco acreage allotments will be increased by 20 percent next year. Use of cigarettes has increased that production is falling behind consumption, it is said. With a Burley crop estimated at 371,000 pounds this year, it is thought consumption next year may reach 450,000,000 pounds.

Although it is not expected very much, if any, tobacco will be sold at the support price this year, still farmers recognize this may not always be true, and that they may need support prices again within the next year or two, J. F. Graham, county agent, said.

Of Course You're Thrilled, Young Lady!

... So many things have been happening since school started... so many new friends to talk to, and so much to talk about.

Certainly you're thrilled, young lady! But before calling, please remember that all telephone lines are crowded now. If you're a party line user, it's especially important to avoid unnecessary calling—and to speak briefly always. Telephone materials aren't available to build enough lines for everybody, so we must make the most of the facilities we have.

Your help in keeping the lines clear will be appreciated by a lot of people.

Many Gold Stars In U. S. Windows If Chinese Bases Are Lost, Says Chandler

(By Associated Press) Lexington — Senator A. B. Chandler, one of five legislators who returned recently from a tour of battlefields around the world, charged Monday that the British were not "enthusiastic" about fighting a full-scale war with Japan and gave that as his reason for advocating more vigorous prosecution of the Pacific war.

The Kentucky senator, addressing a luncheon club, declared that the British, with an army of 2,000,000 men in India, were unwilling to enter an offensive against Japan and told that most of the work being done in the Far East was being assumed by American troops.

"Failure to get bases in Russia and failure to hold bases in China will mean a long war and will mean many gold stars in windows in this country," he said, adding that if China is allowed to lose its fight, the war "may never end."

"The boys in the Pacific area think they have been neglected by the American people," Chandler continued. "They haven't been neglected by the American

Morganfield Here For Game Tonight

Smallest Butler Squad In History Hopes For First Victory

Butler High's Tigers, as yet to emerge on the winning side of the score this football season, will engage the Morganfield Guerrillas in a return match in the local stadium Thursday night, the game to start at 7:45 o'clock.

Coach Cliff Cox, despite losing three and possibly four players from his already small squad the last 10 days, has hopes of a victory in this week's game, since Morganfield also has a small squad which the Tigers held to a 19 to 6 score at Morganfield October 7.

Glass and Hollowell, seniors, have been dropped from the Tiger squad, Coach Cox said, because they failed to report for practice. Moss is out with injuries and Capt. Cecil Coleman, a main reliance in the backfield, may be lost to the team due to Army induction before game time.

The Butler squad is down to 18 players now, Cox said, smallest in the football history of the school.

Parking Lot Cafeteria Style

Knoxville, Tenn. (AP) — Parking lot Manager Ed Wallace claims credit for starting the "Park-on-Your-Honor" system his concern is using in several Southern states.

Unable to get help, Wallace put a placard on his lot office door suggesting motorists put a dime and their cars' license number in a small envelope furnished for the purpose and drop through a slot in the door. A sign reads: "Park and Lock—on Your Honor."

No employee remains to check the cars, and Wallace says 70 percent of the parkers leave the money promptly. A reminder on the windshield of any car for which no payment is made several days in a row usually brings a pay-up, he says.

War Production "Lag"

By Robert M. Farrington
Associated Press Features
Washington—U. S. munition production this year will not reach the $65,000,000,000 goal set for it, although it is expected to come very close, probably $62,000,000,000 anyway.

Failure to meet this goal does not mean that there will be a munition shortage or that American soldiers or sailors on any of our fighting fronts will be without arms to defeat the enemy.

For one thing, there is a recognized difference between the scheduled goal and the amount of equipment actually needed. War Production Board men have been fighting for "realistic" schedules for some time, protesting that the official schedules as put out by the various agencies are frequently nothing more than a mechanical rabbit, close enough to the greyhounds to keep them running, but too far ahead to ever be caught.

In addition, although using a dollar yardstick to measure production is most satisfactory than using numbers, weight or other method, it has serious shortcomings. One of these is that as a manufacturer succeeds in lowering his price per unit through efficiency and increased experience, it beats down the dollar-value goal.

For instance, 1,000 105-mm guns might be scheduled at $15,000 each. Once the guns are rolling off the production line, however, the cost drops to $11,500. On the over-all schedule, this would show up as a $3,500,000 decrease although the quantity has been met fully.

The difference between the official schedules and the real need starts back where the critical materials, such as steel, copper and aluminum, are divided among the various claimant agencies (Army, Navy, Maritime Commission, etc.).

Since these agencies are competing against each other for limited quantities, they tend to go before the hard boiled WPB Requirements Committee with higher demands than actually needed, so that they will still get what they need if their demands are cut.

If the Navy, for instance, asks for a huge quantity of steel for warships, it has to back this up with a schedule showing when and how many ships are to be delivered. If the quantity of steel is inflated, then the schedule of ships also has to be set higher than needed.

On top of this, Navy schedules are not meant to be realistic, but are purposely set high as an incentive for the shipyards.

While this lack of realism does not affect the material allocation it adds to the inflated schedule and results in continuous failure to meet the goals.

Aircraft schedules are another example of a goal never to be attained. They are deliberately put as much as 15 percent out of reach so the manufacturer will try to exceed the estimated capacity of his plant. Aircraft schedules have been "revised" at least three times this year—downwards.

Schedules, therefore are not a hard-and-fast total that must be met. That isn't to say they can be ignored or that producing impossible numbers of war weapons wouldn't help shorten the war. If it were possible to turn out say 10,000 Flying Fortresses a month, the war would be soon won; and the claimant agencies can usually whip up a good argument to justify their high demands.

Some way of measuring our progress in war production is necessary and schedules work fairly well within their limitations. The main danger is their too-literal acceptance as the key to our home-front effort. The battlefield results are perhaps the best indication of how good our production really is.

First State WAC Unit To Get Flag

Women To Train As Replacements For Kentucky Fighting Men

(By Associated Press)

Frankfort, Oct. 12.—Plans for the first unit of Kentucky WACs recruited during the present enlistment drive to take their oath as members of the corps and be presented with a State flag by Gov. Keen Johnson here October 28 were announced today.

The ceremony will take place in the Governor's reception room on the second floor of the State capitol and the flag is to be taken to the new unit's training center. Trainees from Kentucky will march behind it as well as behind the national colors.

State Adjutant General John A. Polin said so far seven recruits have been obtained, but organization is just getting under way throughout the State and it is expected there would be 50 or more young women in the unit to assemble here two weeks from now.

Spends 20 Hours In Cabinet

Barbara Lee Mary (above), 3, peers from a compartment of an old kitchen cabinet in which she was locked for 20 hours. The Pittsburgh, Pa., child wandered to the home of a neighbor, went into the basement and crawled into the compartment. The spring-lock door swung shut. After 20 hours' search the neighbor heard a faint knock, opened the door and heard Barbara say: "I want my mommy." (AP Wirephoto). —AP Telemat

Table Top Tank Battles Teaching Ft. Knox Fighters

Associated Press Features

Fort Knox, Ky.—Tank battles in miniature, guns that aim but don't shoot, and other novel training devices have been originated by the 785th Tank Battalion to teach gunners and tank commanders deadly accuracy in armored warfare.

This Armored Command unit, led by Maj. E. M. Smith, in training at Fort Knox, has invented ingenious gadgets and interesting games that catch the imagination of the trainees, remove the drudgery from periods of instruction, yet hit directly at the heart of the gunnery training problem.

In the "terrain board battle game" devised by Sgt. Harold N. May, two model tanks are placed on a large table representing a 4,000-yard battlefield. The contestants sit opposing each other at a prescribed distance from the table, field glasses trained on the enemy tank. Each estimates the range, gives a fire order, and an assistant places the "burst" on the scaled board. The commander corrects succeeding shots until he gets a direct hit on the enemy, the first man to do so being the winner. A man who can blow his opponent off the board in 20 seconds is likely to repeat the trick in battle.

One of the marvels of gunnery is the ability of a Yank tank to "measure" an enemy tank on the mil scale (a kind of ruler) marked in the lens of his field glasses and tell rapidly the distance to the target. The use of a simple formula enables him to send his first shots close to the objective. In armored warfare, split seconds can mean the difference between life and death.

Capt. W. S. Westfall, battalion gunnery officer, introduced 3-foot cardboard replicas of the field glass mil scale for use in blackboard drill. The scale is tacked up above a tank outline, the instructor places a burst with his pointer and the trainee orders the correction for the next shot. There's no guess-work.

Capt. Westfall and Lt. Patsy F. Malone developed an aiming gun that never shoots but teaches the student to get his gun on the target properly and quickly. The device is a small model of the big tank gun, with elevating and traversing hand wheels and the standard sight reticle.

The gunners and tank commanders drill endlessly until all the techniques of tank gunnery come smoothly and easily. The first time these men go out on the range in their tanks to fire real shells, they already know their job. Those targets—1,000 yards away—are doomed. Many Japs and German tanks will share that doom.

Kentucky Gets Credit, Anyhow

Staunton, Va. (AP)—Major A. Martin, master of ceremonies at the dedication of the new Woodrow Wilson Army General Hospital, made a "slip of the tongue" when he introduced Virginia's Governor Colgate W. Darden, Jr., as "Kentucky's" first citizen. Governor Darden isn't so sure it was a "slip", though. Neither is Martin.

"After all, perhaps the gentleman isn't mistaken," Darden said, "because Kentucky was carved out of our great commonwealth." Martin chuckled, "That wasn't a mistake at all. Some friends of mine from Kentucky were on the platform, and they wanted me to somehow, anyhow, say something about Kentucky, so at the first opportunity, I just said 'Kentucky!'"

Petty Officer Wins Right To Wear Monocle

London (AP)—Because a Royal Navy non-commissioned officer insisted on wearing his monocle aboard ship the Admiralty had to write a new section to the navy's general fleet orders.

The sailor who boldly declared that he had worn a monocle for four years before the war and did not intend to relinquish it is Chief Petty Officer Philip Morter.

His commanding officer found nothing in the books covering the situation and finally sought an official ruling. The admiralty held that a rating may choose between spectacles and a monocle so long as it does not interfere with his efficient discharge of duties.

Handicaps Can't Stop This Man

Erie, Pa. (AP)—Without the use of his crippled arms and legs since birth, John Sides, 24, maintains a greeting card business from his bed, writes to 17 servicemen and averages 12 words a minute on the typewriter.

A victim of spastic paralysis, he says, "there is no such thing as a physical handicap." He lies prone in bed and uses a 14-inch long rod with a mouth-piece to strike the keys of a typewriter alongside his bed. Another of his accomplishments is graduation from a local high school, with the help of his parents.

The session was attended by all councilmen with Mayor Cash presiding.

Observance of Wednesday, 1943

Oct. 27, as Navy Day was urged in a communication, read by the mayor, from the Navy League of the United States, "The Civilian Arm of the Navy."

October 27, was selected because it is the anniversary of the birth of President Theodore Roosevelt, so much of whose life was devoted to establishing a sound naval policy for the United States.
